Power supply stable, gas disrupted

ELECTRICITY supply in Peninsular Malaysia remains stable while gas supply has been disrupted in several areas within the central zone following the gas pipeline fire in Putra Heights, Selangor, last week.

In a statement yesterday, the Energy Commission (ST) said the incident has also disrupted gas supply to four major power stations in the Klang Valley, namely the Connaught Bridge Power Station, the Pulau Indah Power Station, the Sultan Salahuddin Abdul Aziz (KEV) Power Station and the Putrajaya Power Station.

“However, the electricity supply in Peninsular Malaysia remains stable, with several mitigation measures already implemented and planned.

“Among the mitigation measures is optimisation of operations at existing power stations, including coal-based generation, and enhanced monitoring of demand and power dispatch planning, covering various risk scenarios,” it said.

ST said interim mitigation measures are also being continuously reviewed, and the commission will organise engagement sessions with affected consumers soon.

The places affected by the gas supply disruption include Shah Alam, Klang, Serdang, Puchong, Batu Tiga and Kapar in the central zone and some areas in the northern zone. – Bernama
