University holding open day at Putrajaya campus today

THOSE clueless about their future can head over to Universiti Tenaga Nasional (Uniten) today and be enlightened during their open day.

The career and education exhibition is on from 9am to 4pm at the university's Putrajaya campus administration building.

Among the courses which will be highlighted are foundation studies, engineering, computer science and information technology, business management and accounting.

During the open day, there will also be representatives to assist and guide students who face financial problems to further their education.

Apart from that, special offers also await Malaysian students who sign up on the day itself. The offer letter will be issued immediately and the application fees waived.

However, this is only applicable for applicants who meet all the requirements set by the university.

Also, Uniten will be giving the first 100 successful applicants an exemption of RM300.

For details, visit www.uniten.edu.my or call 03-8921 2020.

There will be career and education guides for those visiting Uniten's open day.
